

MULTIHULL ENTHUSIAST AND SAILMAKER JEREMY WHITE JOINS BANKS SAILS

Jeremy writes.....I sailed dinghy multihulls from the age of 14 until I got married and started White Sails. I totally changed the rig of the Shearwater catamaran to such an extent that the boat with White Sails was finishing over a leg ahead of its nearest rival. Now the majority of the fleet have White Sails.

Trying to get into the MOCRA fleet was very difficult, but a chance meeting with a Firebird owner allowed me build a set of carbons. This boat was quite extreme, and we even built a spinnaker chute for easy hoists.

Whether this boat did us any good I really don't know. Our next order was for a standard Firebird, on which I had some of the best sailing of my life. This has led to sails for a My-Cat and also for the old Gasprom. Plus an Asymmetric for The Sheik !!

Sadly, after 12 years I have now closed White Sails, this is mainly due to the fact I fancy a life change. I have now joined Banks Sails, whilst typing this I am also quoting for a Sea-Cart 30, which I would love a ride on.

Banks Sails used to have a reputation for multihull sails with boats like Ful-Pelt, Enza etc. I would like to rebuild that reputation for Banks (and so I can do the sailing I enjoy!)
